

WAR VETERAN, WHO SLASHES THROAT, DEAD

Police Believe Anthony Lally Was Temporarily Demented.

WINDPIPE CUT BY MILK BOTTLE

Anthony Lally, 38, a world war veteran, of Girardville, Schuylkill county, died at the Warner hospital at 11 o'clock, Thursday evening, from the effects of a severed windpipe, inflicted, according to police, with suicidal intent with the top of a broken milk bottle.

Police believe Lally was temporarily demented when he slashed his throat two and a half miles north of Gettysburg on the Harrisburg road around noon, Thursday, a short time after he was escorted to the borough limits by Officer George B. Aughinbaugh, of the borough police force.

Gash 3 Inches Long
Lally inflicted a three-inch gash in his throat and severed his windpipe. Hospital authorities held little hope for his recovery from the time he was admitted.

The former service man was taken into custody by Officer Aughinbaugh at 8:30 o'clock, Thursday morning, after a chase from the north end of town to the intersection of York and Stratton streets. The policeman said residents in the north end of town had complained to him that an apparently demented man was walking across lawns and flower beds and going in and out of houses.

When Lally saw the officer at the intersection of East Lincoln avenue and North Stratton street, the Girardville man started running, and finally was caught at the intersection of York and Stratton streets. He was then committed to the borough lock-up for several hours, during which time he took off all his clothes.

At 11:30 o'clock, Thursday morning, Officer Aughinbaugh took Lally to the northern limits of the borough and sent him on his way. As soon as Lally got out of the police car, he started running north on the Harrisburg road.

At 12:30 o'clock, H. L. Anwyll, of Harrisburg, driving toward Gettysburg, saw Lally lying along the highway. He came into Gettysburg and notified Corporal S. Sheaffer, of the state highway patrol, and the state police. Corporal Sheaffer accompanied Anwyll to the place Lally was lying and directed his removal to the hospital.

Lally's body was prepared for burial by H. B. Bender and Son, and this morning it was sent to Girardville. Lally has a sister, Mrs. M. J. Clark, residing at Ashland. She was notified of her brother's death and is making arrangements for the funeral.

Aspers Bazaar to Open This Evening

Members of the Aspers fire company are preparing to entertain visitors to their annual bazaar tonight and Saturday. Large quantities of merchandise are being offered for sale, including many turkeys and three chow puppies. The bazaar opened Thursday evening.

Plane Burns and Kills Two Pilots

Amazonia, Mo., Nov. 16 (AP)—Two veteran pilots died today in the flaming wreckage of their transport plane on a farm three and one-half miles northwest of here.

H. C. Brasfield, 33, manager of the St. Joseph airport, and Ben F. Billings, 34, of Kansas City, pilot of the Rapid Air Lines, Inc., were the victims. There were no passengers on the ship bound from Omaha to Kansas City.

The tri-motored metal plane was flying in a heavy fog with a drizzle of rain.

MARTIN SERVICES

Funeral services will be held from the Bender funeral home, Carlisle street, Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock for William Horatio Martin, 64, a brother-in-law of Mrs. Minnie Boyd, Emmitsburg road, who died at his home in Elizabeth, New Jersey, Wednesday evening. The Rev. Howard S. Fox, pastor of the Gettysburg Reformed church, will officiate. Interment will be in Evergreen cemetery in the Boyd plot.

LADIES' NIGHT ARRANGED

The Rotary club will observe Ladies' night at its weekly meeting at the Hotel Gettysburg, Monday evening at 6 o'clock. An interesting entertainment program is being arranged.

HIGH ALUMNI PLAN DANCE

Affair Will Be Held During Christmas Holidays; to Present Comedy.

Members of the Alumni association of Gettysburg high school, at a special meeting in the high school Thursday evening, decided to hold a dance during the Christmas holidays. The dance will be open to association members, students of the high school and their friends.

The committee in charge of the dance comprises Robert Taylor chairman; Howard Williams, Jay Schmidt, Kenneth Hull, Luther McDonnell, Mrs. Anne Sefton Eisenhart, Lillian Dougherty and Robert Deardoff.

A motion providing a new constitution for the association was tentatively adopted by the alumni at Thursday's meeting. The constitution provides for an alumni council and an executive committee which will transact all business and eliminate the long business session at the annual banquet.

At the same meeting, the association contracted with Miss H. Lee Sewell, representative of a play production company, to furnish a play and director for an alumni production. The title of the play is "Black Eyed Susan," a musical comedy.

Members of the alumni play executive committee are Miss Ellen Tipton, Mrs. Eva Walter Oyler, Robert Fidler, Mrs. Pauline Little Kitzmiller, Wilbur King, Jay Schmidt, Mrs. Eisenhart and Luther McDonnell. Fred Pfeiffer is advisor.

In reviewing the move to bring in outsiders to stage home talent productions, with the result that a generous portion of the receipts are taken out of the community, the alumni association is already hearing rumors of opposition from those who feel that plenty of production material and directing talent are available at home and who were successful in having the outsiders kept out the last few years.

After 16 Years, Former Chaplain Administers to Dying War Buddy

SIXTEEN years ago an American doughboy met an army chaplain in France. The chaplain was mingling with the men of the 311th Field Artillery, "pepping them up" for the big offensive against the Germans.

United States Senator David A. Reed was major of the 311th outfit. The Rev. Father Mark E. Stock, pastor of St. Francis Xavier's church, was the chaplain. Anthony Lally was the doughboy who listened intently to the chaplain.

Then came the Armistice—peace—the long voyage across the Atlantic, and the discharge of the soldiers for their return to civil life.

Two years ago, Father Stock picked up a hitch-hiker en route to Littlestown. The hitch-hiker said: "Aren't you Father Stock? Didn't you serve as chaplain of the old 311th? Well, I'm Anthony Lally!"

Early Thursday evening Father Stock was summoned to the Annie M. Warner hospital to administer the last rites of the church to a dying man.

When Father Stock reached the bedside of his "unknown" patient he recognized Lally, his "war buddy" and his "hitch-hiking" companion of two years ago. But Lally did not recognize his wartime chaplain. He was too near death.

Father Stock administered the last rites of the church and at 11 o'clock Thursday night Lally, who served his country overseas, passed away.

Arrange to Hire Workers at P. O. For Holiday Rush

Postmaster Charles A. Williams today announced that he has received an appropriation of $347.92 with which to hire additional help in the Gettysburg postoffice during the Christmas season.

The postmaster said he has selected eight employees whom he will call to duty as soon as the mails become too heavy for the regular staff to handle. All but one of those chosen for the Christmas season work have had previous experience at the Gettysburg postoffice.

They are James Howe, John R. Strevig, J. M. Sheads, Rex Gilbert, Alfred Gilbert, Kenneth Hull, Earle Deardoff and George Amick.

Teachers Enjoy Banquet Thursday

Fifty-two high school and grade teachers and their friends attended a banquet held in the cafeteria of the Gettysburg high school Thursday evening. The affair was informal and was featured by musical selections by Philip Hershey of Spring Grove, on the xylophone, and Albert Barbusch, of Harrisburg, on the piano.

Beck Spends $721 In Recent Campaign

The expense account of Emanuel C. Beck, of York, unsuccessful republican candidate for congress from the twenty-second congressional district, was filed in the office of C. P. Palmer, clerk of the courts, Thursday afternoon. The account shows expenditures of $721.97. There were no contributors to his campaign fund.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT

Dr. and Mrs. T. Harold McMurray, South Stratton street, announce the birth of a son, T. Harold, Jr., Thursday morning. Both mother and child are reported doing nicely.

HANSON AGAIN MISSIONS HEAD

Lutherans Re-Elect Proxy and Vote to Expand Work at Philadelphia Sessions.

The Board of American Missions of the United Lutheran Church in America voted Thursday to expand its mission work in Canadian provinces and grant subsidies to foreign language religious publications in hope of combating "Communist and other demoralizing influences."

The $750,000 annual budget in effect this year was retained with the provision that mission work should be expanded "wherever possible," but especially in Canada, where recent immigration has swelled the population.

Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of Gettysburg college, was re-elected president of the board at the annual meeting in session in Philadelphia. Other officers chosen were Grant Hulpberg, Philadelphia, vice president; Henry P. Heuer, Philadelphia, secretary, and S. F. Telleen, New York, treasurer.

Looking to the expansion of the board's organization, the post of assistant to the executive secretary was created, and the Rev. P. A. Kirsch, of New York, chosen to fill it. The board authorized creation of another assistant for the western district and a financial assistant.

Six committee chairmen were selected: English home missions, Dr. H. J. Plum, Buffalo; linguistic, William Eck, Albany; Latin-American, H. L. Snyder, Shepherdstown, West Virginia; church extension, A. Raymond Bard, Reading; finance, Mr. Hulpberg; review, Doctor Pflum.

Long Detour on Lincoln Highway

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 16 (AP)—A 44.1 mile detour on the Lincoln highway diverting traffic between Ligonier and Stoyestown, was announced Thursday by the state highway department. It goes into effect at 8 a. m. Monday.

Traffic will be routed via Donegal and Somerset to avoid construction just east of Ligonier.

Original plans called for maintenance of traffic during the work but unfavorable weather and heavy traffic churned up the sub-grade, causing delays on account of bogged vehicles.

The detour adds about twenty-five miles to the journey between Ligonier and Stoyestown. It will be in effect ten days to two weeks, the department said.

HELD FOR COURT

Edna Hinkle, Steinwehr avenue, Gettysburg, was held for January court on a charge of larceny of a wedding ring valued at $15, at a hearing before Justice of the Peace John C. Shealer, Gettysburg. A similar charge against her sister, Mary Hinkle, was dismissed for lack of evidence. Edna posted $500 bail for her appearance in court. The information had been laid by Mrs. Crissie Plank, Baltimore street, Gettysburg.

HOSPITAL REPORT

Helen Mickleby, Iron Springs; Nellie Nary, Orrtanna, and Mrs. Roy Dugan, Aspers R. 1, were admitted as patients to the Warner hospital.

County Couple Is Married Wednesday

Miss Elizabeth Riley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles I. Riley, of Mt. Pleasant township, and Cyril McMaster, also of Mt. Pleasant township, were married Wednesday by the Rev. J. A. Tytherwaig, in St. Patrick's cathedral, New York city, according to word received here today.

Mrs. McMaster graduated from St. Francis Xavier's parochial school in 1927 and Mr. McMaster attended school in Mt. Pleasant. He is employed in Littlestown.

After a honeymoon in the New England states and Canada the couple will be at home in Mt. Pleasant township, after December 1.

CASHTOWN MAN PAYS FINE BUT FACES 2D TRIAL

Floyd Hartman Free Under $300 Bail for Federal Jury Action.

C. C. C. MEMBER GETS HEARING

After Floyd Hartman, of Cashtown, paid a fine of $5 and costs before Justice of the Peace John C. Shealer this morning on a charge of disorderly conduct, he was taken before United States Commissioner Robert E. Wible for a hearing on charges of disorderly conduct and driving a car while under the influence of liquor on the battlefield.

Commissioner Wible released Hartman under $300 bail for the action of the federal grand jury.

The federal charges against Hartman were laid by James R. McConaghie, superintendent of the national park.

Ellis Sterner, a national park guard, who arrested Hartman, on West Confederate avenue late Wednesday evening, and Captain F. J. Moran, commandant of C. C. C. camp, No. 1, the prosecutor in the charge before Justice Shealer, testified against Hartman at the hearing before Commissioner Wible.

Destroyed Property, Is Charge
At the same time, Commissioner Wible held a hearing for Earl Wood, colored, a member of C. C. C. camp No. 1, charged with driving a car in the national park while under the influence of liquor and the destruction of government property.

Wood must first face a charge of operating a car without the owner's consent for which he was indicted by the November grand jury in the Adams county courts.

The federal charges against Wood were the outgrowth of an accident on the battlefield several weeks ago when a car he was driving, owned by Ben Carter, colored, of Gettysburg, left the avenue and crashed into a cannon, badly damaging the carriage.

Wood's bail was set at $500.

NAMES BIDDLE TO LABOR BOARD

President Roosevelt Appoints Prominent Philadelphia Attorney.

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP)—Francis Biddle, of Philadelphia, today was named chairman of the labor relations board.

In this position he will direct the administration's effort to maintain an industrial truce by settling labor disputes.

The appointment, made by President Roosevelt, was announced by the board.

Biddle succeeds Lloyd K. Garrison who resigned to return to the University of Wisconsin where he is acting dean of the law school and will take office next Monday.

Biddle is a member of the law firm of Barnes, Biddle and Meyers. He was first assistant district attorney of the eastern district of Pennsylvania from 1922 to 1926.

He has been a member of the Philadelphia county board of law examiners for ten years and was vice-chairman of the Public Association's legislative committee which drafted the vocational education act of 1913 and the child labor amendment in 1915.

Last spring he represented several farmers' associations in AAA milk cases.

Mrs. Harper D. Sheppard, of Hanover, newly elected state regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution and member of the Gettysburg chapter, was among the one hundred and eight guests who attended a luncheon meeting of the Harrisburg chapter of the D. A. R. in Harrisburg, Thursday afternoon.

Will Invite Earle to Deliver Memorial Day Address Here Next Year

Governor-elect George H. Earle will be invited to deliver the Memorial Day address in the national cemetery here on May 30, 1935.

Decision to extend an invitation to Pennsylvania's democratic governor-elect was taken at a recent meeting of the Sons of Union Veterans' Memorial Day committee.

Previously, the committee decided to extend an invitation to whichever gubernatorial candidate was elected at the recent November general election.

The Memorial Day committee at its recent meeting directed Edgar K. Markley, Esq., secretary, to extend an invitation to Mr. Earle.

At the same time, the committee decided to invite one member from the Albert J. Lentz American Legion post, the Sergeant William Steffy Spanish War Veterans' post and the Chamber of Commerce to assist in making arrangements for next year's Memorial Day exercises.

Governor Pinchot was the last Pennsylvania executive to speak at Memorial Day exercises here. Governor Pinchot was the speaker in 1923.

George P. Black, Baltimore street, assistant postmaster, is chairman of the 1935 Sons of Union Veterans' Memorial Day committee. Others on the committee, besides Mr. Markley, are J. E. Snyder, treasurer; Edward L. Weikert, Jr., and Robert E. Fisher.

Committed to Jail On Assault Charge

Charles E. Brandt, of Mechanicsburg, was arrested on the farm of Earl Jacoby, Cumberland township, by Trooper Hooper, of the local state police sub-station, Thursday afternoon, on a charge of assault and battery on Mrs. Amy Jacoby.

Taken before Justice of the Peace John C. Shealer, Brandt was committed to the Adams county jail in default of $500 bail for a hearing, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Recall Days at Camp Nawakwa

More than a hundred persons attended an "echo meeting" of summer leadership training students who attended Camp Nawakwa, Brysonia, Thursday night at the Macley street Church of God, Harrisburg.

Delegates from 32 churches in Dauphin, Lancaster, Cumberland and Philadelphia counties were present. The camp is sponsored by Churches of God of the East Pennsylvania Eldership. Guests from Illinois and Maryland churches also attended.

A dinner was served and a program of speeches and songs reminiscent of camping days last August followed.

Two Men Die in N. Y. Hotel Fire

Geneva, N. Y., Nov. 16 (AP)—Trapped on the threshold of escape, two men burned to death today when fire raced through the three story Park hotel. Several of the 16 inmates jumped from windows.

The body of Jay W. Burlew, 40, of Union Springs, was found near a fire escape door on the third floor. James Dannahe, 60, of Geneva, was discovered in his room across the window sill where he died trying to attract attention.

Property damage is estimated at $40,000.

"Major French," English Bulldog Belonging to "Tim" Bream, Age 4, Will Be College Mascot in 1935

"Major French," a full-blooded, pedigreed English bulldog, is the new mascot of the Orange and Blue football team of Gettysburg college. "Major French" will make his debut as the Bulldog mascot next fall.

"Major French," whose father, "Safety First," has won many blue ribbons at dog shows in London and whose mother has captured similar prizes in Canada, was presented to "Tim" Bream, four and one-half-year-old son of Head Coach of Football and Mrs. Henry T. Bream. The dog is a gift from Captain John Fauver, Gettysburg college graduate and star football and baseball player of 1924 and 1925. Captain Fauver is now stationed at Montpelier, Vermont, attached to the army dental corps.

"Major French" is a pure white English bulldog with a brindle patch over his left eye and a smaller patch on his tail. Dog fanciers say he is the "homeliest and ugliest dog in town."

DEFENSE RESTS IN INSULL CASE

Samuel Insull, Jr., Takes Stand for Brief Cross-Examination.

Chicago, Nov. 16 (AP)—The defense in the Insull mail fraud trial rested today after final testimony from Samuel Insull, Jr., son of the Chicago magnate and a central figure in the case.

The defense required two weeks and two days to present its testimony designed to counter the government's charges that Insull and his 16 associates used the mails to defraud.

Young Insull resumed the stand at the opening of the session for a brief cross-examination. He admitted under questioning by Prosecutor Leslie Salter that by figures of the Insull management, the stock "corp" was worthless in September of 1931.

"I don't want to quibble," he said. "The report submitted to us shows the stock was 17 cents in the red but that is on liquidating value alone."

Shown a leaf of the reports, Insull maintained that the stock was not worthless in spite of the fact by liquidating value it was in the red.

The Insull family sold about $1,000,000 worth of stocks in March, 1932, a month before the Investment trusts went into receiverships, Insull admitted, but he denied they were "getting out."

He admitted that at the time Insull purchased $56,000,000 in Insull stock from Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland financier, the Corporation Securities company did not have enough money to pay for it. Eaton accepted $8,000,000 in other Insull stock as part payment and today young Insull admitted that he handled arrangements to buy this back, too.

ORIGINAL "ALICE" DIES

Westerham, England, Nov. 16 (AP)—Mrs. Alice Hargreaves, the original of "Alice in Wonderland," whom Lewis Carroll's imagination sent adventuring after the white rabbit into a fantastic world of nonsense, died today at the age of 82.

DAMAGE ACTION CASE IS BEING HEARD IN COURT

Suit Against Local Man Is Outgrowth Of Automobile Accident.

ONE NON-SUIT IS DIRECTED

Trial of the trespass action for damages, brought by John Clark, Tyrone township, New Oxford R. 1, against C. E. Tawney, Springs avenue, was in progress before Judge Donald P. McPherson in Adams county civil court today.

The action evolved from an automobile accident at the corner of Carlisle street and Lincoln avenue, March 31, when a car driven by Clark and a truck, owned by Tawney and driven by Kenneth Ehrhart, of Gettysburg, collided.

W. Clarence Sheely, Esq., and Eugene V. Bullett, Esq., represent the defendant, while John P. Butt, Esq., is counsel for Clark.

On the jury were W. E. Smith, Oscar C. Deardoff, Benjamin Mehning, Charles Klunk, Carl E. Stough, Jacob A. Keefe, Sherman Punt, Mrs. Raymond E. Deardoff, Orle G. Heckenluber, Richard Yingst, A. C. Miller and Leo Brady.

Directs Non-Suit
Before the Clark-Tawney case went to trial, the court directed a non-suit in the case of the Hanover Trust company against the R. A. Smith cigar company, of MeSherrystown. Motion for the non-suit was made by J. Donald Swope, Esq., who with W. Clarence Sheely, Esq., represented the cigar company. Guy W. Bange, Esq., of Hanover, and Eugene V. Bullett, Esq., of Gettysburg, represented the trust company.

On the jury were J. B. Waddell, C. W. Strickhouser, George W. Swartz, Mrs. Edna Jacobs, John Null, Harry Snyder, Elmer Bennett, Claude Grim, Harry Bolen, L. D. Spangler, Jacob Althoff and James Hoffman.

Jacobs Wins Verdict
A verdict in favor of J. Q. Jacobs, of Fairfield, defendant in an action brought by the personal finance company of Hanover, was returned by a jury which heard testimony in the case, Thursday. By the verdict, Jacobs is permitted to enter a defense to a judgment on which his name appears as one of the signers.

Jacobs claimed his signature on the note was forged, and it was on the basis of that allegation that the case was heard. W. Clarence Sheely, Esq., represented Jacobs.

Allots Funds for Unemployed Relief

Harrisburg, Nov. 16 (AP)—The state Emergency Relief board Thursday allocated $13,062.380 for the relief of Pennsylvania's unemployed during November.

Departing from previous procedure, the board's food and fuel allocations, which in the past have been made directly to the counties, were made in lump sums for the entire state.

Eric H. Biddle, executive director of the board, will re-allocate the funds to counties as the money is needed.

"Under the new work program, persons are transferred from direct relief to work relief when they are placed on work projects," Biddle explained. "Due to the difficulty of estimating the rapidly with which the work program will proceed in the various counties, this change in method of allocation is necessary."

STOCK REPORT

New York, Nov. 16 (AP)—Although bullish inclinations still were evident in the stock market today, further weakness of the utilities provided a barrier that most equities were unable to surmount.

American telephone, the bellweather of the list, dropped nearly 5 points to a new low for the year on selling which followed yesterday's order of the Communications Commission for an investigation of this corporation's affiliations. Most of the industrials, while not too heavy, were without the strength to buck the trend.

New bottoms for 1934 were touched by Consolidated Gas and North America, off fractionally to a point. Public Service of New Jersey also was down slightly.

PREP AT HARRISBURG

The Gettysburg academy eleven will try to keep its season's record of no defeats intact on Saturday when they go to Harrisburg to play Coach Ralph Miller's Harrisburg academy gridders. The local team has won from the capital aggregation for the last five years.

Huey Long's Bills Ready for Passage

Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 16 (AP)—Almost without a murmur, Senator Huey P. Long's extraordinary session of the legislature Thursday set the machinery in motion for final enactment of the "share-the-wealth" dictatorial program and adjournment today.

While this was going on, a handful of the senator's most active political opponents in the legislature commented on his ways.

Representative Mason Spencer, of Madison, admitted hopeless defeat for the anti-Long group.

"Well, you have heard about that sign hangin' up in the Texas church which read: 'Don't shoot the organist, boys. He's doing the best he knows how,'" said Spencer.

Representative Rupert Peyton, a fiery young anti-administrationist from Shreveport who has wailed many a swan song for Louisiana under "Kingfish" rule, concluded Thursday that "I'm not the Messiah to deliver Louisiana from Huey Long."

"But," Peyton added, "that doesn't mean I've gone over to him, though."

BEGGAR TURNS OUT RICH MAN

Sob-Story of Beggar Gains Him Relief But Truth Reveals His Wealth.

By GEORGE TUCKER

New York—Sometimes the city like a kindly mother, clasps some forlorn fledgling to its breast . . . then you have what the city editors call a human interest story.

The only catch is that sometimes the human interest stories backfire—as in the case of that pathetically destitute and maimed old soldier who turned out to be a large property owner with so much coin that he could have financed several relief organizations.

They haled him into court and the tale he told would have made General Sherman's statue burst into tears. The lively countenance that the spectators wear turned solemn under it. His wife had forsaken him, as had his three daughters. One wandered if he were not drawing on Shakespeare here. Anyway, he had been shot to pieces in the Spanish-American war. He had come home to fight the good fight for home and respectability, but one by one the things that he loved had broken faith, and so, verily, it wasn't his fault if he had to sacrifice self-respect and beg an occasional dime on the street corner, was it?

Oh My, An Error!

And so they referred him to a welfare organization so that his days, now that they were in the sera and yellow leaf, might be made more comfortable.

Everything went along jolly well until they unearthed the fact that the old duffer had never been to way, that he owned five or six pieces of property worth thousands of dollars, and that he had been up seven times before, under different names, for vagrancy.

P. S.: He's in the house now.

It's A 'Gag'

Another form of fleeing the public is the Old Wives Tale, spun by a forlorn seller of sheet-music.

The gag is this. The doorbell rings and when you open the door you are confronted by a whining old crone who holds up two or three brightly colored pieces of sheet music.

"Please, sir," she says, "my husband is an epileptic from the war and he has written a song. If we sell enough copies we can get it on the radio and make a little money. It's only a dime."

Then the hard-boiled man reaches down into his pocket and passes her the coin.

As a matter of fact, the incapacitated "husband" who was wrecked by the war is really some petty gangster who has dozens of women working for him. All are schooled in the tear-jerker spiel and then assigned to different districts. For their share they keep a small percentage of the "take."

Explain Security Program of F. D. R.

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP)—Unemployment insurance, with an attendant payroll tax, having been definitely pegged into the administration program for the coming congress, President Roosevelt's economic security experts Thursday set about determining what other phases of his social insurance plan should be put into the urgent class.

Secretary Perkins and others were quick to explain that Mr. Roosevelt's outline Wednesday night of an insurance fund from "contributions" did not debar a payroll tax such as was proposed under the Wagner-Lewis bill. This measure sidetracked last session, projected a five per cent tax on payrolls but with the provision that money would be refunded to those industries which contributed to state unemployment plans.

Broad interpretations of the presidential speech were that he had definitely put unemployment insurance on the schedule for the coming session of congress and had left it up to the experts to decide what, if any other, phase of the economic security program should be included.

Hands Over Wounded Son on Murder Count

St. Paul, Nov. 16 (AP)—The morning after he had been surrendered to police by his father, Russell O'Laughlin, eighteen years old, was indicted Thursday for second-degree murder in the death of Patrolman Lawrence F. Tierney.

Tierney was slain in a pistol fight Wednesday night as he and several officers pursued a holdup man who had robbed Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nippert of $2 as they entered their garage. Police said O'Laughlin had signed a confession admitting he was the holdup man sought and had fired at the policeman with a weapon stolen from the home of a St. Paul detective. The youth, being treated in a hospital for a slight wound suffered in the exchange of shots, was arraigned Thursday.

When his son came home wounded, George O'Laughlin said he realized what he must do. Calling a physician and the parish priest, he listened to the boy's story and then called police.

"It was the only decent thing to do," the elder O'Laughlin said. "I hope no other father ever has to do what I did."

17-Year Old Girl Jailed After Denying Story of Political Parade Deaths

District Attorney Enterline, mentioned in the appended dispatch, is well known in Gettysburg. Mrs. Enterline was formerly Miss Nell Weaver, of Gettysburg.

Pottsville, Nov. 16 (AP)—Betty Luchetta, 17, sobbed as she was locked up in the county jail Thursday, after repudiating a statement District Attorney Leroy Enterline said she made concerning the shooting of five men in a parade the night before the election. The girl was jailed in default of $5,000 bond after a hearing in which three more men formally were held to the grand jury, charged with the slayings.

Philip Bruno, a tax collector; his son, Arthur, and a neighbor, Tony Orlando, were arraigned before an alderman today, then were returned to cells with Joseph Bruno, former county detective; his sons, James and Alfred, and his nephew, Paul.

Schuykill county officials quoted witnesses as saying the democratic parade was fired upon from the Bruno property and from Paul's apartment across the street. Three men were killed outright, two others died, and more than a dozen were wounded.

Betty Held as Witness Betty Luchetta was held as a material witness. She was shown a statement which the district attorney attributed to her, that she saw Joseph and Philip Bruno firing from an upstairs window as the parade went by. The witness said she had not read it carefully before signing it.

"Didn't you say, 'I saw Joseph and Philip Bruno standing in the bedroom with his gun butt on the floor?'" the district attorney asked.

'ACT OF GOD' BABY IN SCHOOL

Little Mary Hayes MacArthur, 4, whose birth was held by court to be an "act of God" when the mother, Helen Hayes, actress, was compelled to break a contract during a theatrical engagement, has enrolled in a Beverly Hills school. The child is shown with her mother at the Beverly Hills home of the father, Charles MacArthur, film producer. (Associated Press Photo)

STAR TO PLAY IN FIRST ROLE

Helen Hayes To Make Film Of First Stage Success.

By GEORGE TUCKER

New York—Helen Hayes doesn't seem able to get away from "What Every Woman Knows."

It all began when Sir James Barrie—who wasn't Sir James then—wrote "What Every Woman Knows." When William Brady wanted to revive it on Broadway he thought it would be an astute thing to have Grace George, his wife, play the leading role, because Grace was and still is a grand actress, and the role is one that demands a lot.

But Miss George demurred. She said: "Billy, why don't you let Helen Hayes play the heroine?"

"Now, honey," Billy replied, "Helen is just a child."

"I know she is," the actress said, "but you listen to your wife just once—Helen Hayes is the one to play that role."

It's Everywhere And so Grace George talked Bill Brady into casting Helen Hayes in the role. Before he did this he wrote to Sir James Barrie and Sir James wrote back that he would be happy to trust his favorite heroine to little Miss Hayes.

Miss Hayes then proceeded to manufacture some Broadway history. She probably thought, after the play had enjoyed a long and successful run, that she was bidding adieu to a good and trusted friend, because after "What Every Woman Knows" her fame was established.

But now it seems that everything Miss Hayes is called on to do is connected with that play. The other night she and Kenneth McKenna were asked to co-star in a play dramatized for the air and when they handed her the script it was the old Barrie piece, "What Every Woman Knows."

Not only this, it is her latest picture.

A Success Story The servant problem is concerning our younger matrons these days.

One in particular, the wife of a young Westchester polo-playing millionaire, had tried a baker's dozen in a row without satisfaction. To her this was distressing because all presented excellent references and all professed competence.

Then one morning a young Russian girl called for employment.

"Can you cook?" inquired the young wife.

"I cook, ma'am, but I'm a long way from being the best in the world."

"And are you a good housekeeper?"

"I know how but I don't like it much."

"Do you like children?"

"Mostly they get on my nerves," stated this forthright young daughter of Russia-in-America.

"You're hired," exclaimed the young matron.

Now she confesses, the girl is the best maid she ever had.

Russell's Divorce Action Hinges on Condonation Pact

London, Nov. 16 (AP)—Bertrand Russell, one of the world's leading advocates of companionate marriage, failed to appear in court Thursday to contest the divorce suit brought by his wife, Countess Russell.

The countless—some of whose views on marriage are just as striking as her husband's—charged Russell was guilty of immoral conduct in 1933 shortly after both signed a document absolving each other from all past indiscretions.

The first day's hearing, over which Sir Boyd Merriman presided, revealed that the case hinges largely on the court's attitude toward the contention submitted on behalf of the countess that the court should not go behind a clause in their deed of separation which condoned any matrimonial offenses committed by either party before the date of the deed.

Sir Boyd, who postponed action when the case first came before him July 26 until the king's proctor should have opportunity to "consider the whole matter with a view of assisting the court," questioned the contention Thursday.

Here's Measuring Aid

For Handy Reference For expediency and everready help why not make out a list of measurements and fasten it up in the kitchen so that it will be before you when you need it? Here are some suggested items to put on such a list:

Four gills equal one pint.
Two pints equal one quart.
Four quarts equal one gallon.
Eight quarts equal 1 peck.
Four pecks equal one bushel.
A gallon of water is equal to 8½ pounds in weight.
One pint of water or milk is equal to a pound.
Two and one-half cups of powdered sugar are equal to one pound.
Two cups of granulated sugar are equal to one pound.
Four cups of flour are equal to one quart or one pound.
Two cups of butter are equal to one pound.

Copra is the chief product of Tonga (Friendly Islands).

MARIAN GORDON

by JEANNE BOWMAN

Chapter 49

NEW DAY DAWNS

Marian waited, restlessly for his return. "Dad, have you seen Lon?" she begged as he came in.

"Yes, fine lad that husband of yours. Game as they make them."

"Is he... is he still in... in jail?"

"No, he hasn't been in jail since ten o'clock. I wired his bail down to him and the District Attorney was waiting to take him down to his office as soon as that arrived. He had a little conference on there that kept him from coming out here. I chartered a plane and flew down, and the minute I landed he sent me out here after you. Ready to go on in?"

"Just wait until I get my hat and coat. And, Dad, we can take Hero, can't we?"

"You bet we can use it to go fishing with me and Lon, you remember... hello old fellow, still kind of shaky, aren't you?"

Hero showed him scant attention. Growing deep in his throat he made a round of the room and stood before the door.

"Go for a ride in the automobile!" suggested Marian. "Go find your leash."

His attention distracted, he went for his leash, but not in his former joyous manner. He walked sedately, and as they went down hill to the car in which Gordon had driven from town, he circled her constantly, as if still intent upon guarding her from unseen enemies.

"Dad," said Marian, as they started off, "you said Mrs. McSwain was going to need Silver. What did you mean?"

"McSwain just did what he forced his son-in-law to do, only he made a thorough job of it. He's dead."

Marian stared at the hill they were ascending, stared at the millions of lights below, as they topped the grade and skirted the sky-line boulevard, then dipped down on the other side.

"How did it happen, Dad?" she asked at length.

"I don't know, Ian," he answered. "We came out by the way of Dublin canyon. There was another car with us, with some of the District Attorney's men in it going after McSwain. At the cross roads we met some servants whose car had broken down going some place for Silver. They refused to tell where, but they told us McSwain had received a telephone message and had then gone into the garden... a summer house, I believe and... finished off."

That summer house. With Diabolo looming up behind it undisturbed in its tranquility.

A few moments later they were driving up before the court house. Marian hadn't seen it since the Brown bribery trial. She blinked her eyes as they came in from the darkness outside, then stared in surprise.

Seated about the big room were friends and strangers. Hamlin, Cliff Hondon, Nora Hondon, Anne and Doctor Steele, William Brown, a few strange men, and Lon.

Marian went straight to Lon, restrained an almost overwhelming desire to throw her arms about him and cry, but satisfied herself with sitting beside him, his arm about her, one hand gripping hers tightly.

"We waited for you, Marian," the District Attorney said in greeting. "Thought you'd like to hear the whole story."

"I-I would," she faltered then, "Will Lon have to go to trial?"

"No," her friend answered. "There's no one to charge him."

"But, Lon, what were you doing in Mister McSwain's office?" she begged.

"Digging up black and white proof of the material he was using in the construction of the school. I figured I'd have to take a chance on robbing him before he sent me to the pen and I couldn't stand by and let that building go on the way it was going."

Marian looked at Clifford Hondon. "When did you arrive in town?" she questioned.

"Yesterday. Came in on the Majola, docked at noon and found half the east bay waiting for me."

"The reason I didn't call you," Hamlin interposed, "was because I went back to the Steele apartment. I remembered that on our way into Reno that day you had talked about your room-mate Anne and her fiancé, a Doctor Steele. I figured these were the same people."

"I told them about our interrupted interview, said I wanted to help you and didn't know how, and Doctor Steele told me the facts that Mr. Casad had confided to him."

"That's where you went that night," Marian said, turning to him.

"Yes, I wanted to talk to someone I could trust who wouldn't be prejudiced one way or the other."

"After what they told me," Hamlin continued, "I figured I'd better check out, and start for Honolulu to see Mr. Hondon, personally. I crossed the bay and the next morning I chanced to read in the morning paper a list of passengers on the boat due in, and found Hondon's name there, so I went down to meet him."

"But how did you happen to be coming to the States?" Marian asked Hondon.

"I came because the District Attorney cabled me to."

"Well," the District Attorney took up the tale, "in the meantime, I had had my office check up on the two men with whom your husband had been out the night the check was cashed. I brought them in. They confessed they had switched checks on Mr. Casad, at McSwain's orders."

"We couldn't do a done different," broke in a husky voice, "he had it on us, it was that or taking a trip to the island."

"I believe that," said the District Attorney, "but I still can't see why you'd let him place another man in the same position."

They talked amongst themselves for a few minutes, then left the court house for home some time later, the faint grey of a new day tinging the sky above them. Marian and Lon and Mr. Gordon drove out to Donian Lodge, but while Mr. Gordon was ready to rest the moment he arrived, the two younger people were restless.

"Put on a heavy coat and let's go to the hill top," suggested Lon.

With rugs over their arms, they walked out to watch the day break. Hero stretched out beside them, his nose nuzzled into Marian's free hand.

They talked for many moments over what had happened in the past, why he had acted as he had, why he had acted as he had. Marian told Lon a little of what had happened at the lodge that night. She told him because she wanted Hero to receive full credit.

And then silently they sat and watched a golden line creep along the horizon, edge the pyramid of Mount Diablo's peak, then break into golden glory over the valley.

"Guess we'd better go back to the house," Lon suggested.

They gathered robes and coats, covered with the warmth of the late fall sun, then paused a moment on the opposite side of the hill to look down on the lodge, and beyond to the deserted development project.

"Tan," said Lon, "the Hondons are coming out tomorrow. Cliff Hondon says he'd like to look our place over."

"Lon, you're not going to sell?"

"Sell this? Sell our home? I should say not. No, it seems that Hamlin had Hondon talk to the Steeles. Doc told him all about my dream of little homes, and how it had been busted up by Lansing making off with my money. Hondon said he figured he owed a lot to you and he'd like to repay it somehow, and Anne told him anything he did for me, he'd be doing for you."

"And so, Ian, he's going to back me. I'll have to go slowly, and things may be a little strained financially for awhile, but—"

"Oh Lon, I'm so happy. You know I don't care for money; for anything but for you, don't you?"

"I do, Ian," he answered softly.

They stopped outside the lodge, looked at the shadows of bare limbs on the house, at tawny chrysanthemums which lined the path, then went in, closing the door gently on the new day.

News From Neighboring Counties

CUMBERLAND COUNTY

APPOINTED HEAD OF HOUSING CAMPAIGN

Mechanicsburg—Robert E. Myers, of 215 West Main street, has been named chairman for Mechanicsburg in the Better Housing campaign now being waged throughout the nation as part of the recovery program. The appointment came from Edward P. Simon, eastern district director for Pennsylvania in the Better Housing division of the National Emergency council.

ELECTED HEAD OF LIBRARY BOARD

Mt. Holly Springs—Dr. G. G. Irwin was elected as the new president of the Amelia S. Givin Free library at Mt. Holly Springs to succeed the late James Andrew Steese, at the forty-fifth annual meeting held this week.

FRANKLIN COUNTY

EXONERATED IN FATAL ACCIDENT

Waynesboro—A verdict of accidental death was returned by a coroner's jury Tuesday night sitting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, East Main street, to hear evidence into the death of Harry "Had" Barkdoll, 50, who was killed in an automobile accident about a mile south of Waynesboro early last Saturday morning. The automobile was being operated by Charles E. Bercaw, Mont Alto.

FREDERICK COUNTY

SUSTAINS BURNS RESCUING CHILD

Fredrick—Kenneth Smith, near Clemsonville, sustained burns about the face and hands Tuesday afternoon about 5 o'clock, when he rescued his year and a half old baby from a room filled with smoke and flames, the result of what is believed to have been an explosion of an oil stove.

YORK COUNTY

GIRL CRUSHED TO DEATH BY CAR

York — June A. Brownsweiger, seven years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond G. Brownsweiger, 817 East Poplar street, was killed at 4:15 o'clock Wednesday afternoon when a wheel of a heavy motor truck passed over her head. Her skull was crushed. The child died en route to the York hospital.

PROPOSED CHURCH MERGEE FAILS

York—Hopes held out for the merger of the two large downtown Lutheran churches, St. Paul's and Zion, have failed almost completely.

It appears that the possibility of ever accomplishing the unions is now further removed than ever, as a result of the action of the church council of St. Paul's congregation, Monday evening, when it "tabled the entire proposition indefinitely," according to a formal communication from the secretary of the board, John A. Hooper, received by Richard Cole, secretary of Zion church council.

INJURED BY RUN-AWAY HORSE

York—Frank Snyder was injured at his home here, Tuesday evening, when the horse he was using to haul stone and cement to make a concrete walk about his home became frightened at the noise of empty buckets rattling on the wagon and ran away. Mr. Snyder was in the path of the vehicle and was run over, the wheels passing over his body. He received cuts and bruises about the body and a deep gash at the ear.

Hi Gridders Meet Carlisle in Only Tilt Here Saturday

The football "dish" for Gettysburg stay-at-homes tomorrow will be served at Gettysburg high school where the Maroon and White gridgers hope to make "hash" of the strong Carlisle eleven. The whistle sounds at 2 o'clock, and with the college gridgers playing at Ursinus, a large crowd of local grid fans is expected to attend the high school game.

The Maroons are reported in good condition for the fray, with none on the sick list.

Believes Distlehurst Child Buried Alive

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 16 (AP).—District Attorney General J. Carlitor Loser disclosed Thursday night he was investigating the possibility that little Dorothy Ann Distlehurst, kidnapped and murdered, may have been buried alive and that her face was possibly disfigured with acid to prevent identification.

Loser said if the child were buried alive she was probably unconscious, for a medical examination of the body has shown that death was caused by two fractures of the skull, such as might have been inflicted by hammer blows.

PRESIDENT WILL DEDICATE PIONEER SETTLEMENT

The Thanksgiving journey of President Roosevelt will take him to old Fort Harrodsburg in Kentucky where on November 16 he will dedicate a memorial to the first white settlement west of the Alleghenies. Above is a replica of the fort taken within the stockade. All of the buildings have been reconstructed and placed exactly as they were originally. The settlement was established in 1774 and was the center of pioneering activities. (Associated Press Photos)

Tells How U. S. Flyer in Air Race Hitch-Hiked Into Persian Prison

(Copyright, 1934, by AP.)

Orly, France, Nov. 16. — John Wright landed at Orly Thursday to tell how John Polando, his copilot in the London-Melbourne air derby, hitch-hiked his way straight into the jail at Mahammara, Persia.

Persian gendarmes offered to let Polando ride atop the handle bars on one of their bicycles after the American's little plane was forced down in Persia, Wright said.

They pedaled the surprised aviator, expecting no such bizarre ending to their good Samaritanism, right into prison. There he stayed twenty-four hours while the Americans' hopes of winning prize money in the derby's handicap division slowly dwindled away.

Wright was flying back to London when fog caused him to land here, at 11:15 a. m. He took off at Marseille at 6:30 a. m., expecting to fly directly to London.

The strange adventures of the pair, as related by Wright, included a meeting with an erstwhile Greek resident of Chicago, who boasted of his friendship with Al Capone and asked, "How is President Harding?"

Stranger, though, was the Persian episode. "We landed in waste land three miles from Mahammara when the ship's motor went dead," Wright said. "Polando started to walk toward the town when he met the gendarmes."

"Meanwhile, I wrapped a handkerchief around an overheated pipe (that caused the forced landing) and flew to Mahammara without knowing of Polando's lift."

"The American consul, Cummings, met me at the airport, and took me to his residence. Shortly afterward the Persian police came and asked the consul to hand me over, but he refused."

"Polando meantime was lodged on the second floor of the jail. He went to the balcony and started shouting for help. The police threatened to put him in solitary confinement for this gesture."

The consul telegraphed to Teheran in an effort to extricate the Americans from their predicament, Wright said, but an entire day passed before the authorities would let them take off.

They decided to abandon the race at Calcutta, but Polando, Wright related, did not relish the idea of returning over Persia, so he decided to go home by boat.

"His hunch was right," the aviator asserted, "for I had to land again at Mahammara and spend the night. I had no difficulty this time, except some one put rocks on the runway and the plane bounced like a kite when I took off."

"We stopped at Avignon, on the Gulf of Corinth," Wright continued, "and I had no more than climbed from the plane when a gentleman in native costume approached. Speaking broken English, he asked

Libby Holman's Son Asks All of Estate Put at $25,000,000

Winston-Salem, N. C., Nov. 16 (AP).—Libby Holman Reynolds' baby son, Christopher, Thursday laid claim to the entire $25,000,000 slice of the Reynolds tobacco fortune which was held in trust for his father, Smith Reynolds.

Acting as "next friend" of the infant Christopher, who was born six months after his father's death from a pistol wound at Reynolds, the family estate here, on July 6, 1932, R. C. Vaughn filed an interplea in the pending litigation over distribution of the trust fund. He asked that Christopher be declared the sole beneficiary and devisee.

The interplea asked that the court Harney, Maryland, were recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Luckenbaugh.

uphold the agreement whereby Mrs. Anne Cannon Reynolds-Smith, first wife of Smith Reynolds, accepted a $1,000,000 trust fund and waived any further claim upon the Reynolds millions on behalf of herself or her child, Anne Cannon Reynolds, 2d.

Out of the Past

Happenings of days gone by as chronicled in The Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg
Times the files reveal.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

Name Post After Gettysburg Boy:
Armistice Day, the day that recalled
most vividly to the minds of Adams county former service men the scenes that took place on the battlefield of France, on the Atlantic and in the United States, when the cessation of hostilities was announced, was fittingly celebrated by the Gettysburg post of the American Legion on Tuesday night.

At the suggestion of John W.
Hartman, chairman of the American Legion here, the members decided to name the Gettysburg post in honor of Albert Lentz, the first Adams county boy who died on the battlefields of France.

Mendels Firm Installs Plant:
Mendels Brothers' company, of Baltimore, will be the first of Gettysburg's three new industries to begin operations, according to the plans now being made by P. Schor-ber, a representative of the firm, who is here now to install the plant in the Eckert building on the square.

Form Service Branch: A Gettysburg branch of the Rank and File
Veterans' Association was formed by Chief Yeoman W. J. Allen at Hotel
Eagle on Wednesday night.

The twelve Gettysburg men who are charter members of the organization are: Norman E. Tate, J. L.
Shultz, John Lauer, Curtis M.
Kline, Otis Criswell, William T.
Glass, Alfred L. Myrick, Ralph E.
Woodward, Clarence Kump, Earl
Smith, Arthur Cullison and William Dobbs.

Hugh Weikert Here: Sergeant
Hugh Weikert, of the 318th Engineers, is spending a nine days' furlough from Camp Dix in Gettysburg. Nine months of Sergeant Weikert's enlistment was spent in France, where he participated in the Argonne drive.

Burn Mortgage of Town Church:
One brief touch of a torch and the St. James' Lutheran church mortgage had vanished in thin air.

November 9, 1919, will stand as a memorable day in the history of St. James' Lutheran church for it marked not only the burning of the mortgage, but the 100th anniversary of consecutive pastorates and the tenth anniversary of the installation of the present pastor,
Rev. Joseph B. Baker.

County Couple Wed at High Noon:
At high noon on Wednesday
the wedding of Miss Mabert Mus-sellman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
Jacob Musselman, of Fairfield, and
J. Claire Sowers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Sowers, of McKnighttown, was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents by Rev. Guy
B. King, uncle of the bride, and
Rev. W. S. Bonnell, pastor of the Fairfield Lutheran church. This day marked the birthday of the bride.

As the clock struck twelve the bridal party entered the room, which was profusely decorated with oak leaves and chrysanthemums, to the strains of the wedding march,
Tannhauser, played by Mrs. Harry Meuller, of Baltimore, an aunt of

And when Simon saw that through laying on of the apostles' hands, the Holy Ghost was given,
he offered them money,

Saying, Give me also this power,
that on whomsoever I lay hands,
he may receive the Holy Ghost.
But Peter said unto him, Thy money perish with thee, because thou hast thought the gift of God
may be purchased with money.

Thou has neither part nor lot in this matter: for thy heart is not right in the sight of God.

Repent therefore of this thy wickedness, and pray God, if perhaps the thought of thine heart
may be forgiven thee.

For I perceive that thou art in the gall of bitterness, and in the bond of iniquity.
Then answered Simon, and said,
Pray ye to the Lord for me,
that none of these things which ye have spoken come upon me.

Just Folks

by
EDGAR A. GUEST

HUMAN ODDITY
What foolish things we mortals do!
For instance, there are people who Spend fortunes on their houses great

And more to men to decorate
The walls with pictures, old and rare,
Till beauty blossoms everywhere.

They load the shelves with costly
books;
Hire butlers, valets, maids and cooks,
Yet in surroundings such as these Where heart and mind should be at ease

And joy be known and laughter ring,
They spend their time in quarreling.

How strange it is and sadly true
That often there are people who
With all that human hearts desire
Which gold and silver can acquire Will search for beauty when they roam

And still be blind to it at home.
With art they'll fill each room and hall,
Yet get no pleasure from it all.

With bindings gay they'll line their shelves
Yet never quite be gay themselves,
Because some silly, trifling thing
Forever sets them quarreling.

Police headquarters at St. Paul,
Minnesota, has been robbed three times in two years. The traffic bureau vault was looted after someone wrote the combination of the safe on the wall beside the door.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams
PARTICIPATORS

THERE is none among us who is able to go far alone. We must grow from the knowledge and research of others.

There is no such thing as a "self-made" man. We are made through the efforts of thousands of others.

And, as others are participants in our success or happiness, so, also, are we participants with others in their advancement. This is as it should be. No human being or nation can live to itself alone and prosper—on live, for that matter.

It is essential that we should be independent and with plenty of courage to see our way along, but we must constantly look to others, to history, to the past, for enlightenment and suggestions that are able to give us impulses for the work or tasks at hand.

The greatest principle in this world for a happy arrangement for the family of man is—earnest cooperation. We must learn to participate with others. In the realm of business, for instance, labor and capital are both essential to the wellbeing of a well-ordered society. Therefore there should be an equitable participation on both sides in the results of this process. The understanding should be clear that both have interests essential to the happiness of the other.

All life is a network of interests. We should all be concerned with their fair workings.

Admiral Peary, who discovered the North Pole, once sent a most interesting letter to this writer in which he stated that he could never have succeeded in his task without the faithful and loyal support of the men who aided him—his "iron men," he called them. From Henson and Capt.
Bob Bartlett down, each felt that he had participated in that discovery—and Peary was the first to acknowledge that fact.

This world is going to right itself in time—after its night of darkness and depression—but every man and woman of us has got to become a participator in the task. Who is to say that he or she will not?

Chapter One

VERDICT

"How long have they been out now?" I asked.

Mr. Cresswell consulted his watch. "Half an hour; at least, twenty-eight minutes, to be exact."

"Is that all?" I said. "It seems more like a week." I took a couple of paces along the narrow cell, and came back to the small table at which he was sitting. "I suppose nine of them have made up their minds that I'm guilty, and they're trying to persuade the other three to agree with them. I'm certain that confounded foreman wants to hang me; I could see it in his eye."

The old lawyer got up slowly, and laid his hand on my shoulder.

"Don't talk like that, my boy," he said, "you—you've been splendid up to now, and . . ."

"Sorry," I interrupted. "It's this infernal waiting that gets on one's nerves. Something like sitting in a dentist's waiting-room staring at the aspidastres."

"I know, I know. It's a terrible ordeal, but you mustn't let it shake your courage. The jury always take a little time; they—they like to discuss a case even when they are practically agreed. Personally, I have no doubt about their verdict—none whatever."

I felt convinced that he was lying, but all the same I made an effort to appear more cheerful.

"Well, you've done everything for me that was humanly possible," I said. "I couldn't have had a better counsel than Barrett; if they choose to murder me it won't be his fault."

"His speech for the defense," said Mr. Cresswell, "was magnificent. It produced a tremendous effect upon the jury—tremendous."

"I wish it had produced a little more upon old Earle," I observed a trifle bitterly.

He nodded. "I understand how you feel but we must try to remember that it's a judge's duty to be strictly impartial. His summing up . . ."

"I don't want impartiality," I broke out. "What I want is justice. I didn't kill Osborne and . . ."

A key grated in the lock, and with a simultaneous movement we swung round towards the iron door. It opened noiselessly, and a broad-shouldered figure in dark blue stepped forward into the cell. I drew in a long breath.

The warder, a genial fellow in spite of his profession, gave me a friendly nod.

"You'll be wanted soon," he remarked, "the jury are just coming back."

Mr. Cresswell took my hand and pressed it. "God be with you, my boy," he muttered huskily.

"You can step in next door, if you'd like to wait, sir," continued the warder, addressing himself to my companion. Then he turned to me. "There's no special hurry for a minute or so; they ain't in court yet."

"I'm ready," I said.

Picking up his hat, Mr. Cresswell walked out of the cell. My jailer eyed me for a moment with a touch of sympathy on his broad, stolid face.

"Keep your nerve up," he said in a low voice, "and good luck to you." Then, tapping me on the arm, he pointed to the door.

Outside, at the end of the white glazed brick passage, stood a second warder. I took my place behind him and, passing the wired-in staircase on our left, we advanced in procession towards the narrow flight of steps which led up into the court. As I mounted I could hear the low murmur of voices.

I had been through so many emotions during the past few weeks that now, when the fateful moment had come, my nerves and brain seemed to be too exhausted for any further effort. All I felt as I stepped out into the dock was a kind of weary and half numbed resentment. I had no particular sensation either of hope or fear.

I walked forward to the front, and the whispered hum of conversation that was going on all round me suddenly became louder. From every part of the court faces turned in my direction. The occupants of the press seats began hastily scribbling in their notebooks, looking up at me with quick glances, as though searching for appropriate adjectives.

In the far corner the jury were already filing back into their places. They were headed by the foreman—a lean, lantern-jawed man with a long scraggy neck and a morose expression. He looked like a dyspeptic schoolmaster.

In a stentorian voice the usher demanded silence. Everyone rose to their feet, a door at the back opened, and Mr. Justice Earle in his scarlet robe stepped slowly into view. He was accompanied by two sheriffs, and with leisurely dignity the trio settled themselves in their respective seats.

"Members of the jury, will you please answer to your names."

While the customary roll call was in progress, my eyes almost instinctively wandered up into the public gallery. It was packed to overflowing, but in the usual place, at the extreme end of the front row, I caught sight of the face that I was looking for.

It was the face of a girl. I had noticed her first on the opening day of my trial, and amongst that drab crowd of typical sensation hunters her fresh beauty had stood out like some delicate flower. She was quite a stranger to me; I hadn't the remotest idea who she was. I only knew that all through the week she had been sitting there in the same corner seat—a motionless and intent figure, apparently absorbed in the evidence.

The last of the jurors mumbled out his reply, and a profound hush fell upon the court. Lowering my eyes from the gallery, I looked steadily in front of me. I prayed silently that whatever happened I might face it without flinching.

With an almost unbearable deliberation the Clerk turned towards the box.

"Members of the jury, have you decided upon your verdict?"

"We have," returned the foreman. "Do you find the prisoner guilty or not guilty of murder?"

"Not guilty."

Something seemed to snap inside my head, and of a sudden the crowded court, became queerly indistinct.

"And that," continued the far away voice, "is the verdict of you all?"

"It is."

By an immense effort I managed to moisten my lips. Through the mist that still floated between us I could see the figure of Mr. Justice Earle.

"The prisoner," he said, "is discharged."

I stared at him vacantly.

Somebody tapped my shoulder. "It's all right, sir," whispered a voice in my ear. "Come along with me and get your coat and hat."

At the touch of the warder's hand my brain began to clear. The trial was finished. I had been found not guilty—I was not going to be hanged—I could walk out into the street a free man.

For a moment the reaction was so terrific that I had to grip hold of the ledge in front to keep myself from swaying. I had a confused impression of people standing up, of a fresh outburst of whispering at the back of the court, of the impassive judge writing at his table. Then I turned and walked towards the steps.

Down below, in a half open doorway facing the staircase, Mr. Cresswell was waiting for me.

"My dear boy," he exclaimed, as he seized hold of both my hands, "I have no words to tell you how happy I am! I knew from the first . . ."

"Better come inside, sir, if you don't mind," interrupted the warder. He pushed back the door as he spoke, and the next moment, still a trifle dazed, I found myself in the small cheerless apartment which served as the prisoners' dining-room.

"You can talk comfortable in here," said the warder encouragingly.

"Thanks," I said dully.

He took his departure, and as the latch clicked behind him I sank down on the nearest bench.

Mr. Cresswell patted me on the shoulder. "We won't try to discuss anything at present," he said. "What you need is a good rest, a good dinner and a nice long sleep. The best thing you can do is to come back with me to my house and stay the night. . . ."

Chapter Two

SEYMOUR'S LETTER

I shook my head. "It's frightfully kind of you," I broke in. "You've been an absolute brick all through, and I can never begin to thank you sufficiently for a quarter of what you've done." I paused. "All the same," I added, "if you won't think me ungrateful I'd rather be alone for the next few hours. I—I want to get things straight in my own mind."

"Why, of course," Mr. Cresswell seated himself beside me. "You do exactly as you please, my boy. If you feel you would be better by yourself, well and good. Don't try to think too much, however. Look on it all as a wretched mistake that's finished and done with, and tomorrow or the next day, when you are quite yourself again, you must come along to lunch with me and we'll have a good long talk."

I stared at him for a moment in silence. "Do you believe that people will agree with the verdict?" I asked.

"Certainly I do; at least ninety-nine out of a hundred. There are always a few fools about who like to flatter themselves that they know better than the jury, but you can take it from me that every sensible man who has followed the case will be absolutely convinced of your innocence. That reminds me"—he put his hand in his breast pocket—"I've got a note for you here from your cousin."

"What—Seymour?" I inquired.

He nodded. "It was sent round to my office this morning with a covering letter. He expressed a wish that it should be handed to you before you left the court."

I slit open the envelope with a certain curiosity. Even in the midst of my own troubles I had found time to wonder more than once what sort of emotions the arrest and trial of his nearest relative had aroused in the mind of my distinguished kinsman. The note had been addressed from 3, St. James' Mansions, and was dated the previous evening.

My Dear Nicholas,

Since you will receive this as soon as you have been cleared of the appalling charge at present hanging over you, I hope to be the first to offer you my congratulations and to express the profound relief which the news of your acquittal will bring to your family and friends.

I am extremely anxious that, before you take any steps at all with regard to your future, you should give me the opportunity of offering you my advice and assistance. I shall be at home tomorrow evening from five to seven-thirty, and I trust and hope that you will come straight here directly you are at liberty to do so.

Your affectionate cousin,
Seymour Trench.

I folded up the missive and replaced it in its envelope.

"What has he got to say about it all?" I asked.

"Have you seen him or talked to him?"

Mr. Cresswell hesitated. "We had an interview at my office. He wanted to know whether any money would be required in order to provide for your defence, but I assured him that, as far as that side of the matter was concerned, there was no occasion to worry. I need hardly add that he was extremely agitated and—distracted."

"Yes," I said. "I imagine that it must have upset him—quite a lot."

My companion cleared his throat. "To a man of Sir Seymour's temperament and position," he observed, "the shock was naturally a severe one. At the same time I see no reason for doubting that his concern was principally on your account. I am sure he will be prepared to do everything in his power to help and encourage you at this—this difficult juncture."

"Well, we shall see," I remarked. I put the letter in my pocket and rose to my feet.

"Good-bye, Mr. Cresswell," I said. "I'm unutterably grateful to you for all your kindness, but I feel too stupid and dazed to express myself intelligibly just at present. I'll ring you up in the morning and we'll make an appointment."

He shook my hand again. "That's the idea," he replied. "You only want a rest as I've already told you. Go home and take things easy, and in a few hours you will be looking at everything in a fresh light. Remember you have nothing to bother your head about now—nothing whatever."

We walked out together into the corridor, where we found the warder lounging against the wire netting.

"I am going to leave my client in your hands now," said Mr. Cresswell. "We should like to avoid any unnecessary fuss or publicity, so if you can see him off quietly as you suggested . . ."

"Quite easy, sir," chimed in the other. "There's a way out at the back what we keep special for that purpose." He gave me a touch on the elbow as though from force of habit. "You come along o' me, Mr. Trench, and I'll see that you ain't interfered with."

$700.00 for Gettysburg BOY SCOUTS

A Character Building and Citizenship Training Organization at Work Among the Boys of Our Community.

The Scout Oath

On my honor I will do my best—

1. To do my duty to God and my country, and to obey the Scout Law.
2. To help other people at all times.
3. To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight.

The Scout Law

1. A SCOUT IS TRUSTWORTHY.

A scout's honor is to be trusted. If he were to violate his honor by telling a lie, or by cheating, or by not doing exactly a given task, when trusted on his honor, he may be directed to hand over his scout badge.

2. A SCOUT IS LOYAL.

He is loyal to all to whom loyalty is due: his scout leader, his home, and parents and country.

3. A SCOUT IS HELPFUL.

He must be prepared at any time to save life, help injured persons, and share the home duties. He must do at least one good turn to somebody every day.

4. A SCOUT IS FRIENDLY.

He is a friend to all and a brother to every other scout.

5. A SCOUT IS COURTEOUS.

He is polite to all, especially to women, children, old people, and the weak and helpless. He must not take pay for being helpful or courteous.

6. A SCOUT IS KIND.

He is a friend to animals. He will not kill nor hurt any living creature needlessly, but will strive to save and protect all harmless life.

7. A SCOUT IS OBEDIENT.

He obeys his parents, scoutmaster, patrol leader, and all other duly constituted authorities.

8. A SCOUT IS CHEERFUL.

He smiles whenever he can. His obedience to orders is prompt and cheery. He never shirks nor grumbles at hardships.

9. A SCOUT IS THRIFTY.

He does not wantonly destroy property. He works faithfully, wastes nothing, and makes the best use of his opportunities. He saves his money so that he may pay his own way, be generous to those in need, and helpful to worthy objects. He may work for pay, but must not receive tips for courtesies or good turns.

10. A SCOUT IS BRAVE.

He has the courage to face danger in spite of fear, and to stand up for the right against the coaxings of friends or the jeers or threats of enemies, and defeat does not down him.

11. A SCOUT IS CLEAN.

He keeps clean in body and thought, stands for clean speech, clean sport, clean habits, and travels with a clean crowd.

12. A SCOUT IS REVERENT.

He is reverent toward God. He is faithful in his religious duties, and respects the convictions of others in matters of custom and religion.

A SCOUT SERVES

More than 200 merit badges on a great variety of subjects marks the progress of the Boy Scout from Tenderfoot to Eagle and beyond.

IS THIS PROGRAM WORTHWHILE?

What Does the Gettysburg Organization get from the York-Adams Area Council?

1—Expert supervision of our work the year around.

2—Two training courses each year under the leadership of Scout Executive Ray F. Zaner. A six weeks' course now in progress.

3—Free and unlimited use of the two council camps—Ganoga and Conewago. Camp Ganoga is open all year.

4—Office records at headquarters. This eliminates the necessity of establishing an office in Gettysburg at real cost.

The Welfare of the Boys is a Challenge to the Men and Women of Gettysburg.

Your Hearty Cooperation will be greatly appreciated.

Campaign Nov. 21-23, 1934

Ex-Hopkins Savant Wins Nobel Award

Stockholm, Nov. 16 (AP).—Dr. Harold Clayton Urey, chemistry professor at Columbia university, Thursday was awarded the Nobel prize in chemistry for 1934.

The announcement came after a long session of the Nobel prize committee, which decided to withhold the 1933 chemistry prize till another year. The physics award likewise was reserved until 1935.

It was reported here that the committee for a long time considered awarding the 1933 chemistry prize to Prof. Gilbert Newton Lewis of the University of California.

There was no formal explanation of the award to Professor Urey, but it was assumed here it was because of his research in thermodynamics, with special emphasis on his work with "heavy water."

Urey will receive a cash prize of approximately $40,000. The formal ceremony of presentation will be held December 12.

DAMAGE CAUSED BY BOS. NAVY YARD BLAST

Firemen are shown battling fire ignited by an explosion which killed one man and caused damage amounting to $175,000 in the Charlestown navy yard at Boston. Glass was broken in buildings within a quarter of a mile of the scene and the shock of the blast was felt for six or eight miles. (Associated Press Photo)

Hauptmann's Attorney To Subpoena Lindbergh

Flemington, N. J., Nov. 16 (AP).—

Hopeful of disproving the state's contention that the kidnapping and slaying of the Lindbergh baby was the work of one man, counsel for Richard Bruno Hauptmann announced Thursday they will subpoena Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, father of the child, as a defense witness at the trial.

Lloyd Fisher, associate defense counsel, said Lindbergh, prior to the hoax trial of John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk (Virginia) shipbuilder, had expressed the opinion the kidnapping-slaying was the work of a gang.

To Call Police Head
Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of New Jersey state police, also will be called for the defense. Fisher said, and if Betty Gow, the Lindbergh nurse, is in the United States when the trial opens January 2, she also will be subpoenaed.

Fisher said Schwarzkopf made a statement after the arrest of Curtis that he believed the shipbuilder knew nothing of the kidnapping, but was simply hoaxing the Lindberghs. Fisher was counsel for Curtis. He said Thursday that he had understood the prosecution was planning to show in June, 1932, that Curtis was a hoaxer and nothing else, but that it suddenly switched its stand and charged Curtis had obstructed justice in the investigation.

Subpoenaed Records
Before the trial of Curtis, Fisher said, he subpoenaed the records of the state police investigation, but found the reported statement by Schwarzkopf was not in them.

He recalled that as defense counsel in the trial he had served subpoenas on Betty Gow and Colonel Lindbergh, but subsequently saw no need to call them as witnesses.

If the state was correct or justified them in assuming a gang and not one man kidnapped and slew the baby, it is wrong now, Fisher said, in asserting Hauptmann alone committed the crime.

Claims "Certain Facts"
"There are certain facts in their possession," Fisher said, "which will eliminate this man (Hauptmann) as the guilty man."

He explained the financial resources of the defense will not permit the spending of several hundred dollars necessary to bring Miss Gow here from Scotland. He declined to indicate what the defense hoped to gain by calling the nursemaid.

Young Insull Lays Collapse to Loans

Chicago, Nov. 16 (AP).—Samuel Insull's son and "chief of staff," last witness for the defense in their mail-order trial, Thursday attributed to banking difficulties the crash of the Insulls' two-billion dollar public utility system, which, he said, wiped out also the family fortune. Young Insull, named for his father and trained to take over his business, declared that bank loans had borne the system down.

"Your situation may be fundamentally sound, as I think this was, and yet you go broke," he told the jury in Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson's court.

The intended ruler of the Insull empire finished direct testimony after a little less than four hours on the stand. Six other defendants will not testify, their attorneys said. Insull testified Thursday that five of them had "no responsibility."

Prosecutor Leslie E. Salter immediately cross-questioned him about his father's long European flight to avoid arrest on the criminal charges in 1932.

Ohio building and loan association has built 750,000 of the state's homes; loaned $3,300,000,000 since 1880; paid $40,000,000 interest and dividends in the past year; have assets of $900,000,000.

Army Chief's Term Extended to Dec. 15

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP).—Cutting through precedent, President Roosevelt Thursday prolonged the tenure of the army's chief of staff, General Douglas MacArthur, for nearly a month beyond his regular four of duty, ending November 23.

Under the order, General MacArthur will continue beyond his one-year term to December 15. In the absence of any explanation from the white house, it was assumed that the president issued the formal order to Secretary Dern to legalize any action MacArthur may take after the expiration of his appointed term.

MacArthur was recommended for reappointment six weeks ago by Dern, but the president had taken no action on the recommendation until today.

The president's action was variously interpreted, with one school seeing it as an indication that MacArthur would be reappointed for another four-year term, and another that some other ranking general officer would be named to the army's highest post.

Bread Loaves Fall Victim to Nazi Plan

Goslar, Germany, Nov. 16 (AP).—To the national slogan, "One Reich, One People, One Fuehrer," the National Nutrition guild added Thursday the words, "One Bread."

Karl Vetter, chief of the guild's grain division, told assembled German farmers, meeting in their second national congress under Nazi auspices, that the government not only had fixed the price of bread, but had prescribed exactly how this bread should be made. "Any baker desiring to bake in a different fashion from the standard set must obtain special permission," Vetter said.

Earlier the congress heard Matthias Haidn, head of the department for the ideological uplift of farmers, scathingly attack "political Jesuitism" and praise the Japanese religion of "blood and race," which, he indicated, was thoroughly in accord with the Nazi concept.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of my dear husband, Leonard Hennig, who departed this life two years ago, November 16, 1932.

Days of sorrow still come o'er me, Hidden tears so often flow; Memory keeps my husband with me, Tho' he died two years ago.

'Tis hard to break the tender cord, When love has bound our hearts; 'Tis hard, so hard, to speak the word, We must forever part.

The flowers I have placed upon his grave, May wither and decay; But the love of him who sleeps beneath, Will never fade away.

A husband, yes, a husband kind, Has gone and left me here behind; No use to weep, for tears are vain, And husband dear is out of pain.

And with a loving heart, dear husband, I will try to follow you; Hoping when we meet in Heaven, Our pleasures to renew.

By his wife,
Mrs. Leonard Hennig.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our mother, Mrs. Mary Louisa Plank, who opened her eyes to the eternal dawn November 16, 1933, we repeat these lines which she cherished:

Everlasting Arms of Love
Are beneath, around, above—
God it is who bears us on,
His Arm we lean upon.

By Her Children.

KNIT-TEX TOP-COAT

America's favorite topcoat is actually a "ten-months-a-year" coat. So warm and fleecy that men find they are coat enough for any except the most severe winter days. Yet so light in weight that you see them everywhere in mild weather and on the cooler evenings in summer. Knit-tex topcoats are still—after 20 years—"light as a feather, warm as toast, soft as velvet". See them in this season's smartest styles, patterns and colors.

FISH STORY

Scarborough, England (AP)—A new British tuna record has been set up by Col. E. T. Peel, one of the pioneers in tuna fishing in British waters, in landing a fish weighing 812 pounds. The fish was his fifth this season.

'CO-TEACHERS' AT POMPEY HOLLOW

Esther De Lee (left) was hard to convince that she had actually been "fired" by Trustee James Armstrong as teacher of the one-room rural school at Pompey Hollow, N. Y., and for one day she taught school in collaboration with Marie Pomilio (right), sent as her successor. The dispute arose over the manner of displaying the American flag in the school house. Washington
Highlights

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington.—Observers here generally have thought it only a matter of time before Marriner S. Eccles of Utah would be found invested with one of the biggest titles under the "new deal."

His elevation by President Roosevelt to governor of the federal reserve board more than fulfills this expectation.

Eccles first attracted the attention of official Washington a few days prior to the inauguration of President Roosevelt when he appeared as a witness before the senate finance committee to give his ideas to what should be done to put this country and the world on a stable economic basis.

His suggestions were so drastic that they were criticized in some quarters as "high-strung and extravagant." Others explained them as due to the "mental excitement and confusion" of the times.

What has happened since?
"New Deal" Program
Among the things Eccles urged just a little more than a week before the launching of the "new deal" were unemployment relief, greater public works expenditures, the domestic allotment farm relief plan and the refinancing of farm mortgages.

He was specific in some of his proposals. For example, he advocated giving the states outright $500,000,000 on a per capita basis to meet unemployment relief for the remainder of that year. He said government funds for construction activities should be increased to $2,500,000,000 for public works loans at low interest rates.

In a word, Eccles' program as a whole proved to be almost identical with that of the "new deal."

In January of 1934 he was made an assistant to Secretary Morgenthau as a treasury liaison representative with other agencies having to do with banking and finance.

Appointment "Significant"

Eccles' appointment is regarded as significant here principally for two reasons. In the first place an out-and-out "new dealer" assumes one of the strongest posts in the administration. And secondly, for the first time since the federal reserve system was devised by President Wilson and Senator Glass of Virginia, in 1913, it will be governed by

Sees Confidence
As Business Need

New York, Nov. 16 (AP)—A famed economist warned the government to reassure business, while a prominent editor urged business to get behind the government, at the annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce of the state of New York Thursday night.

Dr. Edward W. Kemmerer, Walker professor of international finance at Princeton university, said: "It is imperative that the policy in Washington should be one that will inspire the confidence of our best grade, forward looking business executives, the men upon whose initiatives alone we can depend for an enduring recovery. To this end the first requirement is the maintenance of confidence in our currency."

Henry J. Haskell, editor of the Kansas City Star, said:

"The country demonstrated in the election that it is overwhelmingly behind the president. It is up to business to accept the situation and make its plans in accordance with the evident conditions. * * * We are looking for business to come out of hiding and go forward."

A. T. & T. Will Face
Federal Inquiry

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP)—A broad investigation of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, which has a virtual monopoly in the telephone field, was ordered Thursday by the Communications commission as part of the general inquiry to determine whether additional federal communications regulation is needed.

Rates were excluded from the study authorized. The commission indicated, however, that the data in the financial structure of A. T. and T. and its contracts and relationships with other companies would be background for a future inquiry into the charges to the ordinary telephone subscriber.

A resolution for a comprehensive investigation of the giant telephone concern was introduced last session a man from west of the Mississippi river.

In the past the real burden of directing the course of the federal reserve system has rested upon the shoulders of such men as Strong and Harrison, governors of the New York reserve bank.

Eccles will bring to the office a wide and practical banking experience of his own. He is hailed here as a "new-style banker"—one capable of seeing the whole picture of recovery and reconstruction.

by Senator Dill, democrat, Washington. He did not press it after the legislation authorizing the federal communications commission passed.

NO MAN IS

Perfect

MODERN trust service is based on an admission of this simple fact.

The outstanding executive is not always the best man to handle details. The detail man may not have a broad understanding of investments. The investment authority may not be just the man to handle human personal problems.

In a trust institution such as this, different men work together in the interests of our trust customers. One supplies certain qualifications; others supplement these with their abilities and experience.

WHEN your motor does not start instantly on a cold morning it means battery drain... It means also that on dry cold spots of upper cylinder walls, metal grinds on metal and causes damage to your motor.

Two things are needed to prevent these dangers. A fast-starting gasoline and a lubricant that protections upper motor parts. Tydol, the gasoline that lubricates, offers you this combination at no extra cost... With every charge of this fast-starting gasoline that enters your motor there is a positive "film of protection" that not only aids fast-starting but lubricates upper motor parts the minute your motor starts.
